START OF GRAF'S TRIP POSTPONED FOR A PERIOD

Adverse Weather Conditions Delay Third Leg of Round-the-World Cruise

PLANNED EARLY START

Dr. Eckener and Passengers Await Good Weather For Los Angeles Hop

By James R. Young
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
TOKIO, Aug. 23 (Friday)—(INS)—The departure of the Graf Zeppelin on the third leg of its round-the-world flight, was indefinitely postponed by Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the ship.

A definite decision by the grizzled skipper of the world's only passenger air liner to delay the start to Los Angeles was due to adverse weather conditions over northern Japan.

The Graf was scheduled to leave at nine a. m., daylight saving time.

TOKIO, Aug. 22.—The Graf Zeppelin will leave for Los Angeles on the third leg of its round the world flight at 10 o'clock tonight (9 a. m., New York daylight saving time). It was announced by Commander Dr. Hugo Eckener today.

The passengers were ordered to leave Tokio for Kasumigaura Air Field at 6.10 this evening. Repairs to the rear gondola of the dirigible, damaged while the ship was being walked out of the hangar for the take-off yesterday morning, were expected to be completed by 8 p. m. (7 p. m., New York time).

It was originally thought the damage would necessitate a twenty-four hour's postponement, but the repairs were rushed through with all possible speed.

Frenchman Ready For Air Trip to United States

By Frederick K. Abbott
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Undaunted by the latest trans-Atlantic flying tragedy which apparently has claimed the lives of the Swiss boy aviators, Oscar Kaeser and Kurt Luescher, Captain Dieudonne Costes, France's premier living airman, was at Le Bourget field today, awaiting the weatherman's "go" for a new attempt to span the ocean from east to west by air.

Costes will be accompanied by Maurice Bellonte, the navigator and mechanic who was with him on the recent unsuccessful attempt to fly the Atlantic, when the airman were forced by storms to turn back after reaching the Azores.

According to present indications, the start will be made early tomorrow or Saturday morning. Costes is determined to make the flight, and feels that he learned enough about the vagaries of trans-Atlantic flying on his last attempt to ensure success this time.

The flight will be made in the same red Breguet-Hispano plane "Question Mark" which carried the aviators 1,000 miles out over the Atlantic on their last attempt. The plane is equipped with radio, but there is no provision for an emergency landing on the water.

Captain Costes originally intended to start at dawn today, but although weather conditions were good, he was confident they would become better, and decided to wait twenty-four hours at least.

Slapped by Hubby

Mrs. Lois Dodge Manning, in an action for divorce now being heard in Detroit, Michigan, testified that her husband, Lieutenant Benjamin F. Manning, struck her in the face and used vile language to her during their honeymoon trip from Honolulu to Japan. This put the love ship on the rocks, according to Mrs. Manning, as it was her second matrimonial wreck in two years. The Mannings were married September 1, 1927, five months after her divorce from Horace E. Dodge, millionaire automobile manufacturer.

BUCKS COUNTY DOCTORS VISIT CANCER HOSPITAL

Several From Bristol Were In Group at Jeanes Cancer Institution

FOUND IT INTERESTING

Bucks County was well represented at the Tri-County Medical Society Meeting held last Tuesday at Jeanes Cancer and Diagnostic Hospital, Fox Chase, Pa., when over 100 officers and members of the Bucks, Chester and Montgomery County organizations met in joint session for the purpose of inspecting this comparatively new cancer center and to view a motion picture film depicting recently developed phases of cancer research.

Dr. William S. Erdman, of Buckingham, president of the Bucks County body, and twenty-four physicians from other Bucks County points attended the luncheon at 2 p. m. where they were guests of the hospital and later were conducted through the institution founded early last year by funds provided in the will of Anna T. Jeanes, of Philadelphia. Over $1,000,000 was spent in grounds and buildings, and equipment which is said to be the most modern and complete in the country, and $2,650,000 was set up as an endowment fund.

Dr. Roscoe W. Teahan, medical director of the hospital showed the visitors a motion picture film released by the American Society for the Control of Cancer and demonstrating, in the experiment photographed, that normal cells are not affected by radium irradiation while cancer cells are destroyed.

The following members of the Bucks County Medical Society attended the gathering:

Dr. William S. Erdman, Buckingham; Dr. A. L. Campbell, Hattboro; Dr. S. P. McIlhatten, Ivyland; Dr. H. A. Lichtenthaler, Perkasie; Dr. William G. Moyer, Quakertown; Dr. William J. Wilkinson, Sellersville; Dr. E. E. Pownall, Richboro; Dr. C. S. Abbott, Bristol; Dr. J. B. Carrell, Hattboro; Dr. George T. Fox, Bristol; Dr. William C. LeCompte, Bristol; Dr. Anthony F. Myers, Blooming Glen; Dr. Allen H. Moore, Doylestown; Dr. Jesse Packer, Newtown; Dr. Howard Pursell, Bristol; Dr. L. B. Roberts, Wycombe; Dr. O. H. Strouse, Perkasie; Dr. C. L. Taylor, Doylestown; Dr. J. Fred Wagner, Bristol; Dr. H. R. Hicks, Doylestown; Dr. L. A. Walters, Glenside.

PHONE GROWTH IN STATE EXCEEDS ALL RECORDS

Survey Shows Penna. Has 1,185,407 Bell Phones In Operation

N. Y. HAS LARGE NUMBER

Has As Many As Great Britain And Northern Ireland

A recently completed statistical survey of the world's telephone development shows that Pennsylvania had on January 1, 1928, nearly as many telephones as France, Belgium and Bulgaria combined.

There were about 1,065,485 Bell telephones in operation in this State on that date. This figure was substantially increased during 1928 and the first six months of 1929, however, so that today there are more than 1,185,407 Bell telephones in Pennsylvania alone.

France, Belgium and Bulgaria had on January 1, 1928, a total of 1,094,455 telephones. Another indication of the extensive use of the telephone in this State is afforded by the fact that it had practically as many instruments in operation at that time as Italy, Austria, Belgium, Hungary, Norway, Spain and Czechoslovakia combined.

Not only in Pennsylvania, but throughout the nation, telephone development is shown by the survey figures to be well in advance of the expansion of this form of communication in Europe and the rest of the world.

New York, for instance, had almost as many telephones as the whole of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Chicago had more than all France, Los Angeles had almost as many as Austria and Belgium combined. The eight American cities with populations of 1,000,000 or more each had more than half as many telephones as the whole of Europe.

Not only had the United States more telephones than the total for the rest of the world, but Americans used them, as they do now, the telephone more often than the inhabitants of any other country. There were 224.7 telephone conversations per capita in this country in 1927. Canada came next with 221.5 telephone conversations per capita. Germany reported 35.5 conversations, while Great Britain and Northern Ireland had but 28.6 per capita, and France only 17.2 per capita.

The time necessary to obtain authoritative data from the more remote countries of the world made it impossible to get strictly comparable figures for a later date than January 1, 1928, the compilers of the statistics explained.

On that date there were 30,990,304 telephones in the entire world, and of these considerably more than one-half were in the United States. This country's 18,522,767 telephones comprised 60 per cent. of the world's total.

Europe had 8,623,407 telephones, or less than one-half of the number in operation in this country, and only 28 per cent of the total for the world. The remaining 12 per cent of the world's telephones were widely scattered over the globe—in Asia, Africa, Oceania, South America and those countries in North America outside of the United States. During 1927 there were 1,583,743 telephones added to the telephone system of the world, which was nearly as many instruments as were in service throughout the world at the beginning of this century.

It is interesting to note that in relation to population, the extent of telephone service in the United States is markedly greater than in Europe. Out of 21,374,633 telephones operated by private companies, throughout the world, 18,522,767 were in the United States.

There were 15.8 telephones per 100 population in this country as compared with only 1.6 telephones per 100 population in Europe, where nearly 88 per cent of the telephones were under government operation.

The only country approaching the United States in point of density of telephone facilities was Canada, which, on January 1, 1928, had 13.2 telephones per 100 inhabitants.

New Zealand ranked third with 10, followed by Denmark with 9.3, Sweden with 7.7, Australia with 7.2, and Norway with 6.4. Germany ranks next to the United States in the total number of telephones, but had only 4.4 telephones per 100 population. In Great Britain and Northern Ireland there were but 3.6 telephones per 100 inhabitants, while France had only 2.2 telephones per 100 citizens.

Extension of telephone service in the rural districts and the smaller towns has been a feature of the development in the United States. There were 12.2 telephones per 100 inhabitants, while France had only 2.2 telephones per 100 citizens.

War-Time Buddy Comes To Bristol To See Friends

Two war-time friends met yesterday for the first time since 1918 when they fought in the same company in the Great World's War.

In 1918 William J. Strobel and Franklin Gilkeson were fighting side by side with a man named Callahan from Boston. The three were buddies and then the Armistice was signed and that was the last the two Bristol men saw of Callahan until yesterday.

Strobel was at his garage when up walks Callahan. There was generous handshaking and retelling of the stories of the war. Callahan asked for Gilkeson and was taken to the latter's office where both expressed their pleasure at seeing each other again. Callahan spent several hours in Bristol as the guest of Mr. Gilkeson.

Callahan is living in Boston but was in Philadelphia on a visit and came here to see his two war-time buddies.

MORRISVILLE WILL PROCEED AGAINST GRAVEL DIGGING

Menace to Streets Seen in Operation of Building Supply Companies

MUCH NOISE AND SMOKE

Borough Solicitor to Proceed In A Legal Way to Abate Nuisance

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 22.—Lewis R. Bond, borough counsel, has been instructed by Common Council to take such legal action as is deemed necessary for the protection of streets in the lower section of the borough. In many quarters it is feared that the digging operations of gravel companies may cause cave-ins.

That action followed a series of protests from residents of that section, who complained that streets were beginning to show signs of caving, and that they feared for their safety.

Counselor Bond was authorized to associate himself with Counselor Edgar T. Snipes in order that the matter might be handled in the best possible manner.

An ordinance also was ordered drawn regulating the smoke nuisance and noise in the same part of Morrisville. Residents declared they are kept awake nights by the never-ceasing noise caused by giant crushers used by the gravel companies.

They further stated that the calm of Sunday also is broken by the huge machines at work. Then too, smoke is continually clouding the area in the vicinity.

Plans and specifications were received for a new Borough Jail. Bids were ordered to be advertised immediately so that work could be completed by October 31. Because of crowded conditions of the Municipal Building, in which the present jail is included, it was deemed advisable to construct a new one. It will be one story in height and will adjoin the Municipal Building.

Council also voted to extend six-inch water mains 1,000 feet on Park and Central avenues.

In a report received at the session, which lasted until early this morning, it was revealed that borough taxes amounted to $60,385.04, $1,800 more than last year. Total rates for this year were announced as being $3,264,020.

SECOND STILL FOUND ON FALLSINGTON FARM

Suspicious Aroused When The Fish Died in Creeks Nearby

2 ARRESTS ARE MADE

FALLSINGTON, Aug. 22.—A second still was found near here within the past three days when an investigation disclosed that the waters of a creek were being polluted to such an extent that fish were being killed.

The still was located on the farm of Joseph Bux where an old grist mill was being used for the illegal distilling of denatured alcohol.

Farmers enlisted the aid of Federal agents who were dismantling a huge "wildcat" distillery in Fallsington, where a 9,000-gallon still had been confiscated. Several of the residents of the town approached the agents for a solution of the mystery, stating that fish and eels were dying in the creeks in alarming numbers. They thought that the product coming from the grist mill on the farm of Joseph Bux, where toilet waters were supposedly being manufactured, had something to do with the killing of the fish.

Suspicious of the supposed toilet goods factory, the agents inspected the plant and discovered a 1,000-gallon still and many drums containing denatured alcohol ready to be redistilled and manufactured into whiskey. The plant was confiscated and Bux and Joseph Biffert arrested. Bux was held by U. S. Commissioner Patterson for a further hearing.

MURDERER-SUICIDE WANTS BRASS BAND TO PLAY AT FUNERAL

Innkeeper of Trumbauersville Shoots Barber for Giving Tip for Raid

LEAVES QUEER WISH

Death Note Asks Brass Band For Funeral—Omit Flowers

SELLERSVILLE, Aug. 22.—A brass band is to play the final music for a murderer and suicide if the last request of the man is carried out.

At Trumbauersville a hotel proprietor shot and killed a business neighbor who he accused of informing on him for selling liquor and then killed himself.

Then, figuratively dusting off his hands in satisfaction, the hotel proprietor in an ante-mortem note ordered his executors to omit flowers and other customary funeral embellishments, but to hire the "biggest band in Pennsylvania" for his burial.

And to other citizens of the town he sardonically wrote:

"I hope you build a church there now in place of the disorderly house I was accused of operating."

The tragedy flared in broad daylight before the eyes of a girl, 11, Irene Pell, and her brother, Harold, 9, seated in the barber shop of the zealous dry, Frank Fry.

The wet avenger—Joseph Yost, 40, proprietor of the Colonial Inn—appeared at the doorway of the shop as Fry was bobbing the hair of the girl, seated in the barber chair.

"I've been waiting for you and now I've got you," Yost shouted.

He drew a revolver and fired two shots pointblank at Fry. One struck the barber in the head and the second penetrated his stomach. He died instantly. As the children ran screaming to the street, Yost fired a third bullet into his own temple.

State police later found the two bodies side by side on the floor. Near Yost's outstretched left hand was the note from which the above extracts were quoted.

The note, which had been written on Saturday, was worded in a disjointed way, indicating great emotional stress. Fry was dubbed a "rat" in the note, the refrain of which was that all Yost's troubles had been caused by prohibition.

Fry had appeared in Doylestown recently as a witness against Yost, whose place had been raided and closed by police. Yost was held in $1,800 bail for liquor law violations.

One paragraph read: "It was all a lie that girls of 15 and 16 were carried dead drunk from my place. My wife would never allow little girls in the place. She always chased them out. Ask our next door neighbor."

The note ended simply: "All on account of prohibition." Yost is survived by his wife and four children. Fry is survived by his wife and three children.

Garden Contest Closes For Camp Fire Girls

The garden contest which the Camp Fire Girls have been conducting for the past three months ended in a tie between the gardens of Sylvia Howell and Peggy Allen.

Both gardens are symbolic, one being in the shape of a heart and the other in the form of a campfire. These two girls, as the result of their efforts, will each receive as a prize a pair of Indian moccasins.

Sixteen girls fostered gardens during the summer and all deserve commendation for the work required, as all weeding, watering and other work was done by them during the three-month period.

The following deserve special mention: Mary McCoy, tomatoes; Hazel Holmes, sweet alyssum; Carrie Worthington, gladioli; Olive Wyatt, Betty Hill, Thelma Wallace, mixed flowers, well arranged; Mary Holmes, petunias; Meta Landreth, rock garden; Daisy Straus, pansies; Doris Scott, nasturtiums.

Prizes and honors for the gardens will be awarded at the next council fire.

Last evening through the courtesy of Harland Howell a group of Camp Fire Girls and their friends were driven to the Hi-Way Pool near Treviso, where they had a fine time, especially on the sliding board.

NIGHTCLOTHES PARADERS

A few days ago the nation was taken completely by surprise when discontented men in several cities went Malay and rushed about the streets in pajamas. But with the dawn of a new day came an analytical frame of mind and an explanation. The whys and wherefores were scrutinized.

Men are not compelled to wear
heavy, winter trousers in hot weather,
a condition one might presume exists from the spectacle of conservative bald heads parading the streets in pink sleeping garments.
They do so of their own volition.
If they are martyrs they are self-
made martyrs, and one finds it difficult to sympathize with them or shed tears in the manner of a hired mourner.

There are plenty of tropical suits
for men that can be weighed in a jeweler's scale. And their cost is certainly not prohibitive.

Apparently these dormitory exhibitions were but feeble imitations of the feminine trend, which is in the general direction of fewer and thinner clothes, lightweight overalls for beach wear and pajamas that can be decorative as well as useful about the house. The men in revolt were merely showing the ladies that masculinity can also wear night-clothes in broad daylight and on the broad highway with impunity.

PERJURY

Members of the American bench and bar are agreed that there has been a decided increase in perjury in recent years. They acknowledge that little progress has been made toward rectifying the existing situation.

Classed as a felony, perjury is,
nevertheless, one of the hardest of all offenses to detect to the point of obtaining convictions. Judges and prosecuting officials may feel that false testimony is being given, but proving such a thing to be the case is never easy.

The difficulty of inflicting punishment for perjury has, no doubt,
had much to do with its spread.
Criminal agencies have made increasing use of false testimony both for profit and protection. It has been established that in certain types of damage suits perjured testimony
may be hired with comparative ease
and little expense.

The hope of some of those who are alarmed over the spread of perjury is that aroused public consciousness will help put an end to the practice. It is a job of housecleaning in which the public can be of but slight assistance. The burden of reformation must be shouldered by the bench and bar. But juries can help by scrutinizing testimony more carefully and returning verdicts accordingly.

A local parent of six daughters,
who is building a new domicile, has just notified the architects that the second floor might as well be all closets.

Another fearful interlude in the growing child's career is when he or she discovers that by pressing a watermelon seed between the fingers
it can be made to pop across a dinner table.

A "dominant personality" is just a chap who knows what he wants.

SYNOPSIS
Willie Durant is financing Nita
French, an actress, in a musical show, but refuses to put up more money. Jerry Connolly, the manager, accuses Durant of being attentive to Kitty, the stage-struck check room girl, and inducing her father, Dad Malone, and her sweetheart, Jimmy, to invest their life
savings to gain a hold over her.
The box-office is robbed. Nita refuses to finish the performance unless she gets her salary. Kitty goes on in her part and Jimmy informs Nita of Jerry's accusations against Durant. Dad Malone confesses to theft, but Nita forces Durant to sign over the show to Kitty, Jerry and Jimmy.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued
Surprise, astonishment and delight flooded the faces of Jerry, Dad and Jimmy, as they gathered round to inspect the papers that the manager unfolded. Sam Bloom and Joe both leaned over the others' shoulders to get a nearer glimpse of the deeds.
It all sounded too good to be true to Jerry. Even though he hadn't a penny to pay salaries, he still owned half of the show; Dad was out of trouble and Kitty and Jimmy would have their chance. Already the manager's mind was actively considering to whom could go to raise money to keep the show on its feet. The box-office receipts for

"Take Him Away, Boys!"

tonight would tide them over if he could get Sam Bloom to wait a little longer for payment on the security.

"Oh, yes, and here's Willie's
check for five grand. Once more Nita's voice interrupted his thoughts and brought his head jerk-ing upwards. "It's a loan, Jerry.
You can take as long t pay it back
as I took on that cheese sandwich.
That was fifteen years, says you,
but it's all right. Go to it, baby, I'm
-ll for you."

"Say, this is wonderful." For the first time since he had concluded his story about the robbery Dad Malone spoke. There were tears in his blue eyes and he was grinning foolishly.

"Wonderful!" Sam Bloom exclaimed. "Durant loaning money
to him! That ain't wonderful!
That's a miracle!"

Jerry took the check that Nita handed him without a word. He was too stunned to speak. The impossible had actually happened.

"It won't bite you, Jerry," Nita laughed, noting his paralytic silence. "It won't ever bounce back at ya. I'll admit Willie's signature is a bit uncertain. There may be a little blood on it, but it's good. I got that out of him during his last minutes just after the bottle struck him."

"Gosh, Nita," Jerry finally found his voice, and it seemed as though the blood was rushing once more through his body, and not con-gealed in his veins, as it had been.
"You're the best scout—"

"Don't get goony," Nita patted
the manager's hand that was gripping hers in a sort of strangle hold.
"Nita, I can't start to tell you how much obliged we—" Jimmy blurted out.

"Never mind telling me," Nita advised. "You wait and tell Kitty
the good news."

"I'll say I will." The boy's eyes were shining as he went into the wings as far as possible to be the first to greet the girl when she came off the stage.

"I knew something would turn up." With his one free hand, Dad was trying to wipe his eyes.

"That's too bad—just too bad,"
the detective snapped, "but you're still under arrest. You ain't—"

Joe was interrupted by a muffled sound of scuffling footsteps padding across the back of the stage. The little group turned to see what was happening. There came two attend-

At the rear of the procession was evidently a doctor, carrying his inevitable little black bag.

"Well, here goes my little Willie home to his own beddie, and his Ovaltine." Nita shrugged her shoulders as the parade went past.

"He won't want to press the case against Dad, will he?" Sam questioned thoughtfully.

"He couldn't press a pair of pants," Nita snorted. "Take that jewelry off the old boy," she turned on the detective, pointing to the handcuffs that bound him to Malone. "Turn him loose."

"Well, I don't know now," Joe hedged.

"Go on, slip the cuffs off him, or I'll lose my temper again and make you wear 'em for nose rings," the actress ordered. "There goes what's left of Wil'e after I told him what to do and he didn't do it." She hurried after the stretcher as the detective reluctantly took the key to the handcuffs from his pocket and unloosened the bracelets.

"Wait a second, boys," Nita
called to the stretcher bearers.

She caught up to the group just as they reached the stage door.
Without a word she put her hand experimentally along the side of the stretcher, and then reached underneath the blanket and brought out a bottle. "I kind of thought you'd try to get out with this, you worm," she addressed the battered figure beneath the coverlet.

"Aw, Nita, please—please," came the muffled voice from a bandaged
head that looked like a great white pillow.

"It's all right! Mamma wouldn't hit her little darling now," Nita soothed. "But he must hurry and get well because when he does Mamma's going to kick the tar out of him again just for good luck.
Take him away, boys." She motioned to the stretcher bearers to proceed on their way. "Tell him bedtime stories, but don't put him
in the garbaze wagon by mistake.
I may need him later."

The doctor shook his head hopelessly as he headed for the door with his grinning companions. As he glanced back he saw Nita pulling the cork and then tipping the bottle up to her mouth.

CHAPTER XVII

Standing in the wings between numbers, Jimmy told Kitty everything that had happened. The girl laughed and cried and laughed again, dabbling frantically at her make-up. It all sounded like a fairly tale with an unbelievably happy ending. Dad was free;
everybody would be paid; the show
would go into Broadway with Kitty in the leading role. There seemed to be nothing more to worry about, and the thought was a blessed relief after the strain of the evening.

That a few short hours could so change one's entire life seemed beyond reason. Kitty felt like pinching herself to see whether she was awake. And she was afraid if she did pinch herself she would find that everything was all
a dream. "KITTY MALONE in
'WELCOME HOME.'" She could visualize the brilliant lights in front of the theatre that would proclaim her a star.

"Gosh, what a break!" Kitty breathed excitedly. "Are you sure it's all true, Jimmy? Do we really own part of the show?"

"Part of it!" Jimmy exclaimed.
"Why, we're half owners, and besides that, Nita made Durant give Jerry five thousand bucks. Gee, you'll be packing your trunks to go to New York tomorrow."

"Yes, I suppose so," Kitty sighed luxuriously. Her deep blue eyes sparkled with the joy that she knew was her's.

Jimmy looked a little crestfallen,
a little sad. He took the girl's hand and gazed at her longingly.

"If you do go away promise me
you won't forget me," he pleaded.

"But, Jimmy, you'll be going with me and so will Dad, if he wants to. Remember you own part of this show."

"I know, but there'll be a lot of other guys crazy about you, and maybe you'll like someone else better than you do me."

For an answer Kitty simply threw her arms about the boy's neck and kissed him. They clung closely to each other until Joe Beaton, the comedian, and the Dorsey twins fell over them making their exit.

"Get out of my way," Beaton grumbled. "This darn opera's driving me crazy. Everything's all wrong. I can't even come off the stage without stumbling over mobs of people." Still grumbling, he went on his way, heedless of the little gurgles of laughter that came from the boy and girl.

"You two are always in corners
slobbering over each other," Berta
moaned.

"Why don't you get a Ford coupe?" Betty suggested.

"You're only jealous," Jimmy

"FLOWERS FOR THE FLOWERLESS" IS REALITY AS OVER ONE HUNDRED ORGANIZATIONS GATHER MANY BLOSSOMS FOR RESIDENTS OF CONGESTED DISTRICTS

Great Quantities of Blooms, Cultivated and Wild, Are Left
Every Week-Day at Four Art Alliance Flower Booths—Ninth Annual Campaign Will Reach Climax in September—Boy Scouts Assist.

More than one hundred organizations, including women's clubs, civic bodies, and social and welfare groups are co-operating with The Philadelphia Art Alliance in the opening of its ninth annual campaign for the collection and distribution of "Flowers for the Flowerless."

Great quantities of flowers, both cultivated and wild, are being received every week-day, with the exception of Saturdays, at the four Art Alliance flower booths located in Broad Street Station, Reading Terminal, on the Parkway (Wills, Hospital grounds) and at the Sixty-ninth Street Terminal, P. R. T., Philadelphia.

The flowers are being left at the booths by automobilists and by persons afoot. The posties are coming from large estates in the suburbs, from smaller private gardens in Philadelphia and vicinity, and from woods and fields in the rural sections adjacent to the city.

In the list of cultivated flowers the donations include snap-dragons, dahlias, English daisies, asters, pansies and many varieties of flowering shrubs. Wild flower donations include Job's pye, clover and Queen Anne's lace.

The blossoms will be distributed to more than fifty institutions, including hospitals, orphanages, settlement houses and nurseries, and also to residents of congested districts.

The "Flowers for the Flowerless" campaign will climax in September when more than one hundred automobiles laden with blossoms will make a pilgrimage from Chester County to Philadelphia. The "Motor Flower Parade" will have the support of leading organizations in Philadelphia and Chester Counties including some sixty chambers of commerce, granges, business men's organizations, welfare and social groups and the one hundred women's clubs co-operating in the Art Alliance flower movement. More than sixty towns of Chester County are already listed in the movement. The flower parade will be met at City Line by a police escort, and the file and drum corps of the Philadelphia Boy Scouts will meet the blossom caravan at the Art Museum and escort it down the Parkway. Boy Scouts will be assigned to the various machines to take them to their destinations, after cards have been distributed among the drivers, assigning them to the various beneficiaries. Following the distribution, the flower contributors will be given a reception at the Art Alliance headquarters, Rittenhouse Square.

Some of the organizations co-operating with the flower movement are the Alden Woman's Club, Alden and Clifton W. C. T. "The collection and distribution of flowers for the flowerless," said Mrs. Lewis, "will continue until the first frost in the fall. We hope that the distribution of blossoms will double that of last year, and we ask the co-operation of all citizens in bringing joy to shut-ins and other unfortunates."

Harmonica Band Will Play at New Hope Park

Albert N. Hoxie, of Philadelphia, and the Philadelphia Harmonica Band, a nationally known musical organization, will give a concert at Deer Park, New Hope, Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

This celebrated band, which has traveled more than 60,000 miles during the past year for more than 200 concerts and only recently played for President Hoover at the White House, is camping at Deer Park for the summer.

In addition to the Philadelphia band the Boys' Harmonica Band of the Elks Club, Mount Vernon, N. Y., is also at Deer Park for a short camping period and will assist with Sunday's program.

GRAND THEATRE

Originally planned to be a silent drama, "Not Quite Decent," a talking companion picture to "Mother Knows Best," will reach the screen with a goodly part of the many dramatic episodes in dialogue and sound reproduced by Fox Movietone.

Based on a story "The Grouch Bag," perhaps one of the most human stories with a stage background yet to reach the screen, the production has a tremendously powerful climax. Louise Dresser as Mame Jarro, to save her own daughter from a philanderer, in the presence of scores of people in a speakeasy feigns drunkenness, accuses the man of having debased her, as well as others, and succeeds in disillusioning the girl with the man.

Through the medium of Fox Movietone this dramatic scene is doubly intensified.

Another sequence which will come from the screen in sound is Miss Louise Dresser singing the theme song, "Empty Arms."

The picture is the fourth directorial triumph in one year for Irving Cummings.

The supporting cast includes Allan Lane, Marjorie Beebe, Paul Nicholson, Jack Kenney and Ben Hewlett. The picture is coming to the Grand tomorrow only.

Landscaping Necessary to Complete Home Modernizing

SHRUBBERY AND LAWN SETS OFF THE AVERAGE HOUSE

PLAN YOUR HOME SCENIC EFFECTS

Often the beauty of a home is enhanced to a marked extent by proper landscaping. The house, attractive enough with its modern lines, takes on a new appeal when vines, flowers and shrubbery are planted and trained.

Modernization includes landscaping and emphasis should be placed on this statement. The home is up to date only when lawns have been planted and shrubbery set out. Otherwise the residence is raw and unfinished.

The mere fact that a house is surrounded by an attractive lawn often leads the average person to believe that the home-owner has taken complete steps to make his property modern. The lawn is really the first step in the plan.

Landscaping Improves Property

The illustrations on this page show interesting before and after views. The lawn in the lower picture is most attractive. The grass is well cared for, being trimmed and neat.

Yet what a difference resulted when shrubbery was set out and allowed to grow. Three years had elapsed when the top illustration was taken.

During that interval shrubbery had been set along the edge of the lawn bordering the public sidewalk. Another strip of shrubbery was planted near the foundations of the building and a tree set out in the front lawn in a spot calculated to give shade a few years hence.

Exterior Remains Unchanged

The exterior of the house remains unchanged with the exception of adding the gay awnings which protect the windows on the south and west elevations. Yet the difference in appearance is remarkable. One view is bare and incomplete; the other inviting. No matter how effective the lines of the house or how attractive the interior, a hospitable, homey effect is secured by the use of shrubbery and flowers.

Architects Realize Importance of Landscaping

Many architects when planning the design of a home insist on landscaping the grounds at the same time. They know that the effectiveness of the exterior depends largely on the surroundings and that full justice to the original idea can only be secured when the lawns are properly handled. The home garden is usually divided into lawn, flowers and vegetable gardens, and service yard.

The flower garden should be laid out so that it will be enjoyed from the windows of the house. The vegetable garden should be located at the back of the lot as it is strictly a utilitarian project. Often the two are divided by hedges or a lattice fence, over which vines can grow.

Lawns Essential to Home

Well cared for lawns are essential if the house be properly set off. The lawns should be as spacious as possible and should not be cut up by shrubbery or flower beds, as these limit the sweep of the lawn.

Flowers and shrubbery are usually placed along the edge of the lawn or massed near the house. Often a low privet hedge grows next to the sidewalk at the corners masses of flowers being placed to break the positive direction of line.

Get Advice on Landscaping

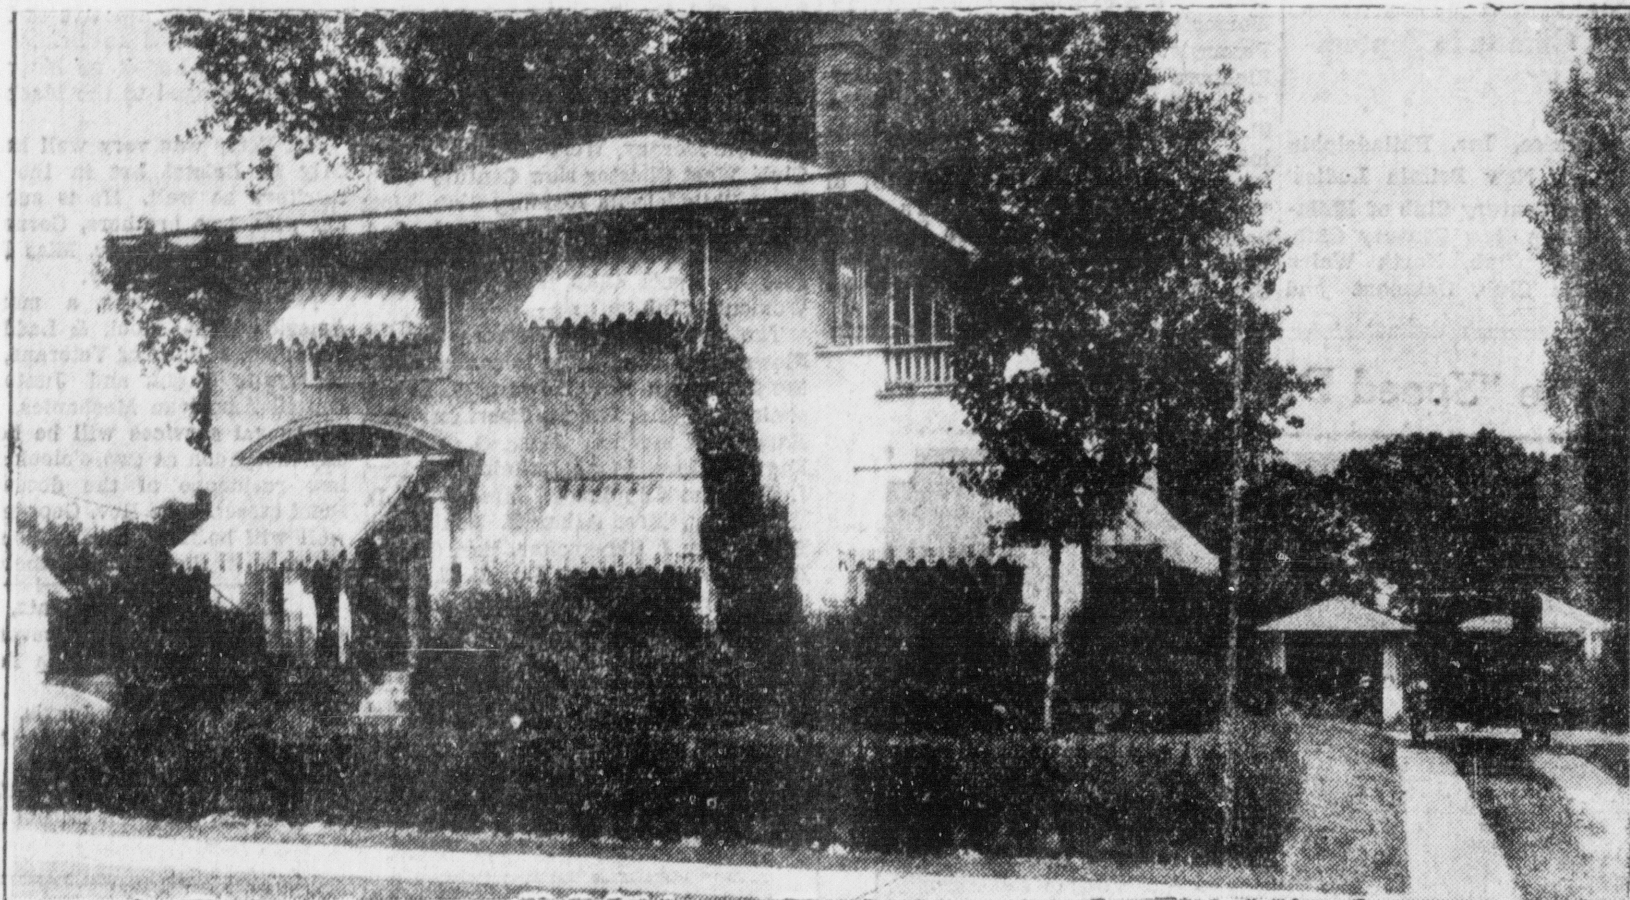

The yard should be landscaped according to a definite plan. This should be worked out before the lawns and shrubbery are set out, but often when modernizing it is necessary to take the lawn as it stands and make the needed improvements.

The home owner who is not experienced with flowers or shrubbery needs the advice of competent landscape artists. The landscaping of a plot of ground is an important factor in the final appearance of the home and it is always wise to seek the services of men who know and who can visualize the final result.

AUTOMOBILES ARE MAKING THE FRONT PORCHES OBSOLETE

Back in the horse and buggy days the front porch was a favorite spot during the summer months, but with the coming of the automobile the family prefer to take a long ride in their car when endeavoring to keep cool and comfortable.

The front porch therefore is rapidly falling into disuse. Many families when remodeling the house now specify a small stoop which protects the doorway during inclement weather. The porch has been discarded by these home owners as being an unnecessary expense.

Here are two views of the same house before and after the owner landscaped the lot. While the house had modern lines, the modernizing of its surroundings more than doubled its attractiveness.

se had modern lines, the modernizing of its surroundings more than doubled its attractiveness.

FLYING ANTS ENDANGER THE WOODWORK OF THE PROPERTY

The foundation of a building, when made of wood, should always rest on brick or concrete and never on the ground. There are over 40 species of termites in the United States and these winged ants often destroy the wooden framework and floors of buildings if they are allowed to enter.

Termites, like the white ants of Africa, live on cellulose found in wood, living or dead vegetation, paper, cloth, etc. They burrow in the ground. When food is found as in buildings they tunnel up through it, often reaching as high as the sixth floor.

Since they are tunneling insects, their presence is often hidden until they have greatly damaged the building. The only permanent cure is to entirely replace the damaged woodwork and establish preventative means by "insulating" the woodwork from contact with the ground.

It can be accomplished by the use of stone or concrete foundations and with the lower flooring and foundations impregnated with coal tar creosote.

Termites need moisture to survive. Insulating the woodwork causes them to die out. Complete insulation of all untreated woodwork from the ground is the only effective method of preventing the ravages of termites in buildings in the United States.

USE ROSE LADDERS TO TRAIN THE VINES

Along the side of your house you can build a simple trellis so that when growing roses and other vines you can train them to grow up to make a graceful, decorative effect.

Rose ladders are easily constructed or may be purchased from manufacturers. They should harmonize with your home and may be painted in keeping with the rest of the house.

PANELLED WALLS ARE RICH IN THEIR DECORATIVE APPEAL

French Paneling Very Popular

Just at the present time there seems to be a revival in the use of paneled walls when finishing the interior of the house.

Paneled walls have long been held to be suitable only for the residence of the man of wealth. The price of panels was the determining factor in days gone by. Since the cost of paneling was high, their use was evidence of wealth.

Today improved methods have lowered costs. The newer kinds of panels and different ways of achieving the paneled effect have placed such walls within the reach of all.

Whereas the walls of the residence of gone-by days were finished in painted and stained woods, today wall board and plaster board may be used. The French paneling with its one or more tones may be applied over plaster or canvas, wall paper also may be applied in panels with lain colors between, and moulding. A similar effect may be produced with paint, with stenciled or stippled panels.

frequently is the reason why a property owner is under-insured. While he has been waiting for a chance to order the additional insurance he required, fire has destroyed his property.

The services of a well-organized insurance agency would have made it convenient for him to secure the additional protection when he first realized he needed it.

"JOE" KOEHLER BLANKS
ST. ANN'S BALL NINE

By T. M. Juno

The Federals, playing steady ball behind "Joe" Kohler, easily blanked the St. Ann's team last night on St. Ann's field, while the winners amassed four runs.

It marked the second time that the "Saints" have been blanked this week. "Ted" Praul did the trick on Monday evening.

The game probably clinches the second half for Mulholland's crew, who has but one more game to play and that is with the Independents. Anyhow, the worst the Federals could get now is a tie.

"Smoky Joe" Kohler and Tulio both gave an excellent performance on the hill. Kohler allowed four hits and fanned seven men. Tulio was found for six hits and whiffed five batters.

Kohler received errorless support and was aided by two double plays and fast fielding on the parts of Riola and J. Fine. Dugan and Dietrich played good ball.

St. Ann's played poor ball in the field, erring at the wrong time. The Federals were quick to take advantage of poor fielding and developed the misplays into runs.

"Eddie" Roe was the fielding sensation for the losers. Paletta and Dietrich led the hitters with two in three tries. Stallone received two walks and was not credited with a time at bat.

Tulio turned in a remarkable feat in breezing Barrett, of the Federals, Barrett, in two and one-half years of Twilight League baseball had not fanned once. Tulio fanned the hitter in the first inning and for good measure did it again in the fourth.

The Federals scored two runs in the first canto. M. Cochrane singled and continued to second on Giliardi's error. After Barrett struck out, Dietrich hit to center and rounded up at second when Pico allowed the ball to roll by him. Dietrich scored when Riola muffed Fine's hit.

The Federals' other two tallies were made in the third. With one gone, Dietrich singled and went to second on Fine's bingle. The runners advanced on a passed ball and Dietrich scored on a wild pitch. Riola singled to center to score Fine.

Tonight the Hibernians play Bristol Colored A. C.
